

Can-Do Mentality

Fast Mobilization Needed For Holiday Weekend Data Collection

HaystackID has an extensive track record of providing innovative and comprehensive support for litigation proceedings involving the public sector. We know how to address inherent bureaucratic issues of cases in this arena, plus we understand that the scope of projects and associated timelines can be especially challenging.

Additionally, we only hire professionals who have a relentless “can-do” mentality to providing superior support for counsel representing public, private, and governmental sectors.

Background: HaystackID’s unique skills working within government sector. HaystackID had proven our value to one particular law firm for many years, especially with collections outside normal business hours and on holidays. During one case while the U.S. government was on holiday, Easter Sunday was chosen as the best day to image a multitude of devices including laptop and desktop computers. The case involved a tremendous amount of data, and all datasets had to be reviewed as quickly as possible. The law firm needed an end-to-end service provider that could respond quickly as a court order was in place.

HaystackID Responds: Coordinating multiple resources to accommodate search. HaystackID mobilized a team within a week’s notice to run this extensive collection. HaystackID’s forensic examiners were able to travel out of state, image the required computers, and run searches on the data using forensic tools so that the attorneys would be ready to begin the review process on the following Monday.

Solution: Project successfully completed in spite of time constraints. The HaystackID team worked through the holiday weekend to expedite the collection process, demonstrating our strong work ethic and commitment to complete such a critical task as quickly as possible. HaystackID’s team guided the project from start to finish and handled the full range of challenges throughout.

Outcome: No substitute for determination when delivering for our clients. This project exemplifies our combination of exceptional technical acumen and commitment to completing the work—regardless of the day of the week or scope of the project—even when operating within the rules, regulations, and standards of the public sector.
